

The Chronicles of Deaven

THE BAND PLAYS ON

MR. DEAVEN MARCHING.

WALES, WI – Passersby were amazed at the amount of sound cymbals produced in this sleepy village’s downtown area recently when the razor sharp metal disks of terror cut through the air, punctuating the brash horns as they marched, unstoppable, mindless and unrelenting. These clashing portents brought forth by our youth! Throughout the hot afternoon with sun waning, the sure, steady drumbeat marked the passage of time, reminding all who have ears that the band plays on.

ARTISAN MAKES ARTISANAL ART

MS. DEAVEN AND ONE OF HER WORKS.

KETTLE MORAINÉ, WI – As a result of school assignments and copious free time, Mia Deaven, 12 became a full-fledged Artisan making Artisanal art. “It may be a tautology, but this Artisan stuff really sells,” according to Mia’s father David Deaven. “Basically anything she makes can be labeled Artisanal, because that means she made it herself, and instantly her crafts triple in market value.” Ms. Deaven has made paintings, jewelry, fingernail decorations, and food items while being an Artisan.

PLAY BALL!

MS. DEAVEN PREPARING TO SET.

MIDDLETON, WI – Girls from across Wisconsin descended here in March to play volleyball in between long periods spent sending instagrams, kiks, vines, and even plain SMS texts to each other even when standing less than 2 meters apart. Between a club team, middle school team, and summer sand league, local resident Mia Deaven is managing to play a decent amount of volleyball.

CUPCAKE AND A BOOK

MS. DEAVEN, MS. KENTON, AND CAKES

DELAFIELD, WI – Visitors to the Delafield Public Library this summer were able to purchase Artisanal cupcakes from local Artisans Mia Deaven, 12, and her friend Sarah Kenton. The Artisans were on hand to sell Artisanal cupcakes to raise funds for the library. “The double choco-blast Oreo cupcake has a pleasant sweet taste” according to one anonymous library staffer. No strangers to recognition for charitable works, the girls also received a signed letter of thanks from Wisconsin’s Lieutenant Governor after their girl scout troop successfully launched the STEP emergency preparedness for children program in several Wisconsin school districts.

LET IT SNOW

THE DEAVENS AT 11,000’.

BERTHOUD PASS, CO – Some refugees from Wisconsin stopped here in April to perform a short religious prayer ceremony, encouraging snowfall to close the pass after their safe passage to Winter Park and the ski slopes located there. “We would like all traffic from Denver to be blocked for the next 4 days,” said Mia Deaven, 12. Ms. Deaven favors tree skiing on blue slopes, specializing in trails which are exceedingly difficult for her father, David Deaven, to navigate in his attempt to supervise her runs.

PLAY BALL!

MR. DEAVEN IN THE BATTER’S BOX.

MYRTLE BEACH, SC – Baseball fans at the Ripkin Experience here were surprised this summer to see Aidan Deaven, 14 playing baseball in between long stretches of time at the beach, and riding golf carts around the retirement village in excess of the 19MPH speed limit. Mr. Deaven was in town with his Delafield Titans team and his family.

THE DEAVEN FAMILY.

MARSHFIELD, WI – In the last year of a successful middle school career soon to be capped by graduation, Aidan Deaven, 14, and his fellow Kettle Moraine basketball 8th grade club team took 4th place at the Wisconsin State basketball tournament. Mr. Deaven is playing for the Kettle Moraine HS freshman team in the 2013-14 season.

VERBOTENE STADT

THIS IS NOT ALLOWED.

FORBIDDEN CITY, CHINA – Nobody is allowed in the city. Mr. David Deaven, 47, is not allowed in the city. If you were here you would also not be allowed in the city. It is Forbidden. “I mostly enjoyed the garden areas of the forbidden city” said Mr. Deaven. “The buildings are nice but the simple sculpture with green ivy growing in and around it were my favorites.” Mr. Deaven was not in the city during his last business trip to China.

GNAR GNAR POW POW

SITTING, ALWAYS SITTING IS THE SNOWBOARDER.

SITTING DOWN AT HOME, TOO.

WINTER PARK, CO – Just before plunging into powder, trees, and cliffs, Aidan Deaven took a few minutes this February to enjoy the view from the 12,000’ peak of the Parsenn bowl. Mr. Deaven has been enjoying Winter Park every year since he was 8 years old, most often from a sitting position, which is – along with slope scraping – the predominant snowboarding stance.

ÆLFSCÍENE MÆGP

MEDIEVAL PRINCESS.

SCHAUMBURG, IL – In festive garb the school kids gather, to see medieval sports. One parent declined to go this year, because the beer wasn’t served in quarts.

KINGDA FLAW

WELL LAID TRACK.

TOWN OF DELAFIELD, WI – Local construction worker Aidan Deaven, 15 got his first car this year. And he built a roller coaster in his backyard. “The track is perfect, but my Dad can’t get the trucks on the cart to work,” said Mr. Deaven. “Three sets of them he built from wood have broken apart at the bottom of the hill, and now he has to make new welded metal ones.” Mr. Deaven’s father declined to comment about the likelihood that the new trucks would remain safely intact through the 20’ drop and banked turns now criss-crossing his once-peaceful backyard.

LOW RIDER

IN THE NEW CAR.

DELAFIELD, WI – Boy acquires, repairs, and drives 2000 Celica, with temporary license to be granted by the state of Wisconsin in the first two weeks of February, 2014.
